Cost of Quality

Mission:

The Cost of Quality Working Group was set up to examine quality issues which affect the cost of construction projects. In reviewing what is an extremely complex subject in such a broad industry with varying contract conditions and supply chains, we decided to focus solely on issues post handover.

Progress Report:

- University College London assigned a PhD student to work with us and collect data, analyse results and report back.
 - The group has continued to meet on a bi-monthly basis during the past year and has made considerable progress in its studies which have primarily focused on the PhD study utilizing one client.
 - The outcomes of these studies have been discussed and are of considerable interest and we hope to present these at the event in September.

Request:

If you are a Client or know a Client who would be willing to share their defects information across a number of projects the ConSIG's Cost of Quality Working Group would very much appreciate your help.

We are looking for further defects data to support this research project.

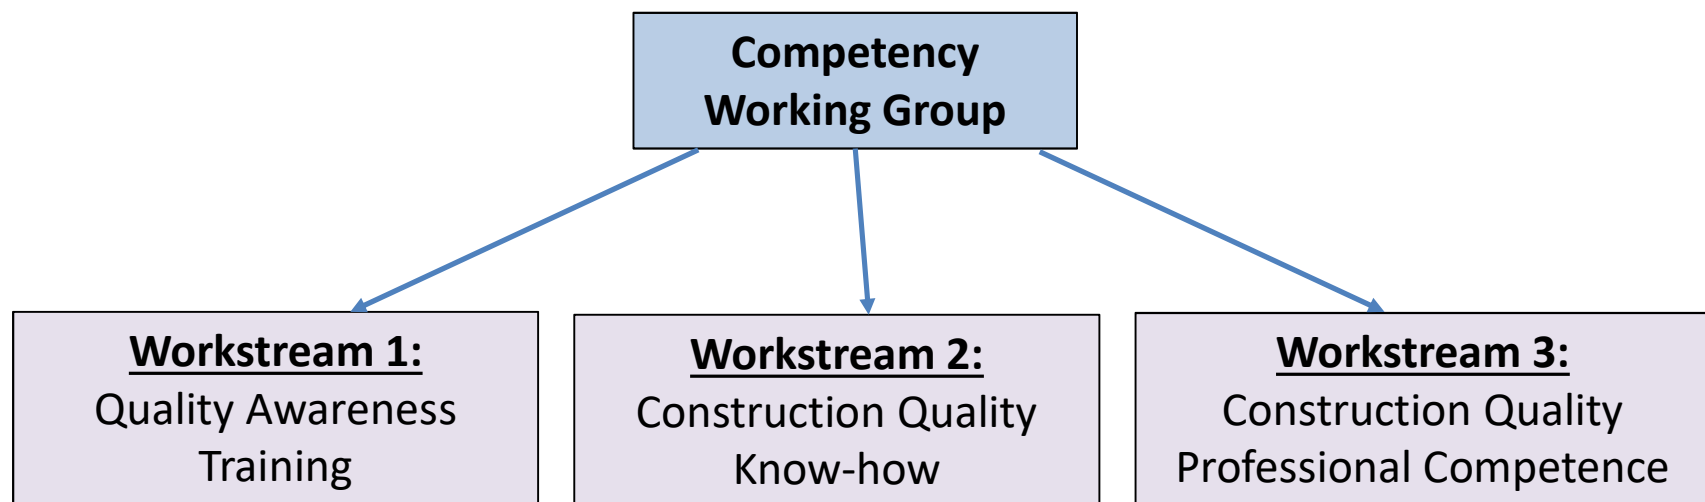

If you may be able to assist, please contact the CoQ Working Group Chair, Dan Keeling.
